

Totally Workwear Joondalup, Bunbury and Mackay Upgrade to Ironbark C#

Totally Workwear Joondalup, Bunbury and Mackay have upgraded their Cobol systems to Ironbark C#.

Established in 1965, Totally Workwear are the specialists in work wear. Each store is locally owned and operated with over 41 stores around Australia with locations in every state.

Ironbark C# is fundamentally similar to Cobol, but there are advantages to the C# system which include more ledger traceability, better audit control and integration with third party software and analysis tools.

The new features were made possible by upgrading the programming language from the original Cobol to Microsoft's latest language C#.

Sacha Fahy, Ironbark Software's Development Manager says "Better security is just one benefit of the latest Ironbark C# system. Customers will also have more control over menus than ever before and will find it easier to audit and balance general ledgers. Our commitment to R&D is a key factor in the successful rollout of Ironbark C# with full help desk support facilities available to clients. The need for innovative technology has spurred the improvement of our systems which are being demanded by clients and potential clients alike. Development keeps us up to date in a competitive software market. The older version of Ironbark does not provide for major system advancements and this is why our focus is lying mainly on the development of Ironbark C#..."

Whilst no new training is required for existing Ironbark customers who wish to upgrade, Ironbark highly recommend it.

"The programs are more powerful than our customers realize and by utilizing our training resources, our customers can learn how to use the latest C# Ironbark system which will save time and money in the long run..." says Fahy.

Going live with Ironbark C# in April, Totally Workwear Joondalup are reaping the benefits of the new Ironbark system.

Kevin Moore, the Proprietor of the Joondalup store and customer of Ironbark for over 8 years says "Early benefits of using the new Ironbark are the new features that allow us to maximize the power of the software and take some of the labour intensive tasks out of our processes..."

The need to stay up to date with advances in technology was one of the key reasons for the upgrade to C# by Totally Workwear Joondalup.

Some of the main differences noticed by Joondalup include the ability to email PDF files directly from the system and the overall ease of use of the windows format.

Integration to other 3rd parties will be setup for Joondalup later in the year with EDI ordering options on the table.

Totally Workwear Joondalup use only Ironbark to run their business from beginning to end with Bill of Materials, General Ledger, Debtors, Creditors, Customer Orders, Payroll, Stock, Suppliers Orders and Quotes currently installed.

When asked if Ironbark C# has met their expectations, Kevin Moore of Joondalup replied "Yes, most definitely..."

He goes on to say, "We are strongly of the opinion that an up to date and fully integrated computer system is vital to a business if you wish to grow and be part of the modern business world. Our Ironbark computer systems has played an enormous part in the successful management and administration of our business..."

Also going live with Ironbark C# is Totally Workwear Mackay, an Ironbark client for over 10 years...

"Our old Ironbark system was great; but we needed something to take us into the next 10 years. Ironbark's C# system has offered us the tools to make this happen."

Roy & Beryl Redfern, Directors – Totally Workwear Mackay.

Totally Workwear Bunbury also upgraded their Cobol systems to Ironbark C#. Located in Western Australia, Totally Workwear Bunbury have been a client of Ironbark's for over 9 years.
