

Ironbark makes the Q400 list 5 years in a row

Ironbark Software has made the Q400 list for the fifth year in a row.

Now entering its sixth year and described as one of the key business events of the year, the Q400 is a unique program that provides public recognition of the achievements of Queensland's local business heroes – the owners of the state's leading home-grown enterprises. It comprises: a prestigious listing of the state's top 400 privately owned companies; the official publication featuring the final list and profiles of member companies; and the annual Q400 Business Summit, which each year attracts over 300 of the state's leading business operators to hear an unrivalled line-up of speakers on issues of direct relevance to private company owners and managers, as well as a unique forum to network and socialise with their peers.

“The Q400 has provided us with the opportunity to be recognized in one of Queensland's key business events. It is of great significance to be acknowledged as a leading, privately owned company in Queensland...” Chris Findlater – Managing Director, Ironbark Software.

The Queensland 400 list and awards were recently unveiled at a gala dinner at Suncorp Stadium's, Members Dining Room on October 30 2008.
